

What Do Editors Want?

Michael Mungiello

Friday April 7, 2023 at 2:00 p.m.
University Hall 448

Michael Mungiello represents a diverse range of nonfiction, written by academics for a broad readership, and has worked with both commercial publishers and university presses. His workshop will center on translating one's scholarly work into a compelling book, what to look for in an editor (and an agent), and how to build an ongoing readership as a public intellectual with an audience beyond the classroom.

With support from the Modern Greek Program, and the Departments of Classics, English, Comparative Studies, Germanic Studies, and the Mershon Center.
